

Young Designer Competition 2018

DESIGN BRIEF

Who we are:

Kingston's International Youth Arts Festival, sometimes abbreviated to IYAF.

Now in its tenth year, IYAF is the UK's biggest multi-arts festival for performers aged under 27, and features some of the best new work from talented rising stars. It showcases around 200 events including acts on the mainstream and fringe circuit, before many head to the Edinburgh festival in August.

It incorporates: theatre, music, dance, visual arts, spoken word, circus and comedy at the Rose Theatre and other venues; two weekends of live music and entertainment in the market square; and a professionally-curated carnival.

2018 design objectives:

- Let people know what the festival is about
- Celebrate the festival's tenth anniversary
- Engage people already interested in the arts in Kingston, London, Surrey
- Attract new audiences in for the arts in Kingston, London, Surrey
- Associate the IYAF brand with high-quality arts and creative people

Target audience:

Although IYAF participants are all younger people, the festival's core audience is adults and families. The design should therefore appeal to all age groups - not specifically children.

Our brand values:

- We showcase high-quality
- We are warm and energetic, not pretentious
- We welcome the world to Kingston

How to enter:

The competition is open to young people aged 16-26 who live or study in the UK.

1. Produce a design that can be adapted for the following materials:

- A festival poster scalable from A4 to A0.
- Cover of the 2018 printed festival programme.
- Banner on our website and social media profiles
- Merchandise e.g. T-shirt or bag.

2. Complete the short application form, writing up to 500 words (max) describing your concepts and why you believe you should be the festival designer.

3. Your design concept and application form should be emailed as an electronic PDF to hello@iyafestival.org.uk (Max 10 mb size)
